Dr Xavier takes the stage at IMCAS Paris!

Dr Xavier was invited to speak at IMCAS Paris, one of the most prestigious global conferences in dermatology, plastic surgery, and aesthetic science.

IMCAS brings together leading experts, researchers, and industry professionals to explore the latest breakthroughs in aesthetic medicine, anti-aging, and regenerative treatments.

Dr Xavier's invitation came from Dermoaroma, a renowned Italian pharmaceutical and science company operating in over 60 countries. He took to the stage to discuss XCell, their revolutionary sublingual skin and hair supplement spray, designed to support immune health, skin, and hair at a DNA level - a key advancement in the integrative approach to regenerative medicine.

Dr Xavier on the Future of Regenerative Aesthetics:

"It's an incredible honour to be invited to speak on the world stage of medical aesthetics at IMCAS. Having attended this conference for 20 years, being asked to present is both exciting and humbling - especially on a product that aligns with the growing shift toward regenerative medicine. The connection between the gut, skin, and immune system is a game-changer, and XCell is at the forefront of this movement. I can't wait for its launch in the UK!"
